THE CONSTITUTION

BY W. A. HEMPHILL & CO. | ATLANTA, GEORGIA, FRIDAY, AUGUST 20, 1869. | VOLUME II---NUMBER 56

EVENING EDITION.

ATLANTA, GEORGIA::::AUGUST 19.

GEORGIA STATE PRESS CONVENTION.—A convention of the newspaper press of the State of Georgia, will be held in Atlanta, on Tuesday, August the 24th, and it is respectfully and urgently desired that every newspaper in the State be represented. The Convention will assemble at eleven o'clock.

☞ See Fourth Page.

General Dodge.

Our contemporary, the Macon Journal ' Messenger, alluding to the rumor that [illegible] Dodge would take General Rawlins' place as Secretary of War, asks who [illegible]

We have a slight acquaintance with him. He is a western man—hails from Iowa—is a civil engineer by profession. He is quite young for so responsible a position—not over 35. He rose to the command of a division in the Federal service during the late war, and for a time commanded an army corps. He was a successful and gallant officer. He has been a member of Congress from the extreme western part of Iowa. He is very popular with his people. He is an exceedingly modest man, and in his manners is something like Grant, solid and uncommunicative. He is more a steady, plodding, practical man, than a brilliant or even sprightly one. He is a worker in every sense of the word. He is a small, plain-looking person, very ordinary in appearance, and unpretentious, but quite gentlemanly.

He is said to have exhibited a good deal of administrative ability as a Corps General, and sustained himself fully.

Georgia News.

Orders for six hundred Chinese, mostly for Savannah, have been booked. Morton, negro hotel speculator, committed to jail for swindling a man and brother! Nymphs du pave a great nuisance.—Savannah News.

Revival in Baptist and Methodist Churches. Many joined, and meetings progressing. Editor absent from Church on account of dilapidated wardrobe and not "loose habits." Farmers report cotton crop seriously affected with rust.—Warrenton Clipper.

Mrs. Miller Grieve, wife of Col. Miller Grieve, Sr., died on the 10th, leaving a family of seven children. Revival in colored Baptist and Methodist Chuches. Pastor of Baptist Church baptized fifteen on Sunday.—Milledgeville Recorder.

Contractors of Brunswick and Albany railroad, want one thousand hands. The Glynn county Mutual Aid and Charity Association organized on the 9th, Rev. C. A. Fulwood, presiding officer.—Brunswick Appeal.

Weather oppressively hot and dry. Rust and caterpillars doing much damage to cotton. Estimated that cotton crop will not be more than one half, and corn crop below the average. Big pic-nic at Davisboro. William Cox, about twenty-two years of age, suffocated on the 6th, by poisonous gas in well, on the premises of T. J. Cook.—Sandersville Georgian.

Receiver's books show $68,130 worth of real estate not returned this year. Gower, Jones & Co., of Cartersville, have bought a lot, and propose to erect a large factory for manufacturing buggies, carriages, wagons, etc. J. P. Holt appointed agent of Rome Bible Society, to canvass Floyd county. City Physician instructed to keep a registry of births and deaths. City Council donated $250 to Agricultural Fair.—Rome Courier.

Judge P. B. Robinson preaches in Baptist church on Sunday, 22d. August term of Baldwin Superior Court begins Monday, 23d. Not much business on civil docket. Two murder cases on criminal docket. Cotton suffering from rust and "firing." The distance between Savannah and Atlanta, by an air-line, is 215 miles; distance from Savannah to Tennille (air-line), 110 miles; from Tennille to Atlanta, (air-line) 105 miles. Present route from Savannah to Tennille, 130 miles; air-line from Tennille to Atlanta, 105—total, 235. Tennille to Atlanta, via road from Milledgeville to Eatonton, 111 miles; distance from Savannah via this route, 241 miles. Distance via Macon, 297 miles. Distance saved by air-line, 82 miles.—Milledgeville Union.

Schools opened well this term. Drought severe in some parts of the county, and affects the corn. Other crops very fine. A toll bridge is being erected across the Etowah river, at Douthitt's ferry. Rev. Mr. Goldwier, an eminent Baptist minister from lower Georgia, has bought land in Bartow, with an intention to settle there. A new depot has been erected at Stegall's Station, just across the river, and John P. Stegall appointed agent. The new Baptist Church, is being rapidly pushed forward to completion, preparatory to the meeting of the Middle Cherokee Association, during the last week in September. Divine services are now regularly held, at the Academy, on every third Sabbath afternoon, by the Rev. R. W. B. Elliott, Episcopal minister. Superior Court will commence its fall session, in this place, on the third Monday in September. The erection of a neat brick Church edifice is now being agitated by the Methodist denomination.—Cartersville Express.

THE MARIETTA FAIR.

Col. David E. Butler's Speech—Mr. Mansfield — Practical Witicism—The Music—New Donations.

WEDNESDAY NIGHT, Aug. 18, 1869.

Fair progressing finely. Larger crowd out this afternoon and this evening than has been seen by your correspondent here yet.

Rev. Dr. Tucker did not speak, but (he not being here) his place was filled by Col. David E. Butler, of Morgan county. Col. Butler made a very good speech. He possesses great fluency and a captivating delivery. His views are intensely patriotic and practical. He gave much good advice, and carried encouragement to the hearts of all present by his sanguine sentiments. He held the crowd in attention for about one hour. One idea of his I must be pardoned for alluding to. He says that he believed that before the end of the world we will have regular telegraphic communication with Saturn, Jupiter, etc. This is a beautiful theory, though slightly opposed to the teachings of philosophy. I'd like to hear a man sing Old Dog Tray after he had been planting telegraph poles about thirty miles beyond our atmosphere. He also believes that the stars are inhabited; this conclusion is arrived at by an argument of analogy. He thinks that the inhabitants of the stars never having sinned—this conclusion arrived at by a fancy flight—are as yet gifted with omniscience, etc., and hence can help run the telegraph wire. They had better run two-thirds of the way, as we have sinned and are not omniscient. I'd like to suggest Atlanta as a good terminus for this aerial cable. "Hole in the sky," Boutwell, will represent "the management," on the part of the earth. Mr. Butler hopes for a universal language, for though the Babel muss was pretty, yet the starites had no representation there, and may now possess the tongue which will be spoken by all souls. The approaching comet will act as a kind of carrier dove between the worlds while the preliminaries are being arranged. Mr. Butler's speech was very well-timed and well received.

Dr. Harrison and Hon. Parks Bell, speak to-morrow.

After Mr. Butler's speech, the crowd was regaled by a deliberate witicism perpetrated by Mr. Mansfield, thusly: Mr. Sanford was called on to speak, and said that he had forgotten his manuscript. Mr. Mansfield slipped off the stage and got an almanac, which he presented Mr. Sanford, in lieu of the lost manuscript. This facetious demonstration on the part of the manager, was received with much applause.

Among the donations to-day, I noticed a fine piano, from C. M. Steeby Balt; a fine assortment of oils from P. Kellogg & Co., of New York; a large lot of books, from Sheldon & Co., and Richards, of your city, and Appleton & Co., New York; some fine clothing, from Rosenfield & Co., Baltimore and Atlanta; a stove and kitchen furniture, from Hunnicutt & Bellingrath, of Atlanta; a beautiful thirty dollar cake, from Mrs. Hirsch, of Marietta. Contributions are continually coming in.

The Cartersville Brass Band has been making music for us all day. While I do not think they play as well as the Starlight Band, yet their selection of pieces was better; at least, better suited to the taste of the people. While the Starlight Band skillfully rendered complicated quicksteps, the Cartersville Band would dash off with spirit, "Capt. Jenks," "Pat Malloy," "Love's Chidings," and such other soul-stirring symphonies. Clark's Band will be here to-morrow, I think.

Just as the concert opened to-night a cry of "Fire!" was raised. Your reporter hastened to the Concert Hall from whence the alarm, and found that the curtains had blazed a little, but had been put out. Thus was this fire "nipped in the bud."

Marietta has no fire engine, but her little boys are very active—what's the difference then?

To-morrow night will be a big night, I think. Negro minstrels will give a show, besides the regular concert.

More anon. KING HANS.

P. S.—My male chambermaid told me to-night, "he heard the geog-rilley wus sick—dat he eat a straw hat, and it didn't gree wid him." He should indulge in ipicac, if my African was correct in his statement. K. H.

President Grant's Policy No Policy—Butler's Emphatic Opinion of Grant, Boutwell and Hoar—The Pratt Case—Hard on Bingham—The Dents.

WASHINGTON, August 10, 1869.

It is out of the question to ignore the doings and undoings of the President, in writing from this point. For, although he does not spend a quarter of his time at the Seat of Government, his few acts, while here, are breeders of all sorts of disorders and complications. This is my excuse for so frequently referring to him.

General Grant said in his inaugural that he had "no policy," and that whatever he did or said, must be paid very little attention to, as he intended (and gave due notice before hand.) to unsay and undo, as occasion might require. Gentlemen of the Radical party should have remembered these fundamental "layings down of principles" when prematurely complaining of the statesmanship of their chosen chief.

When Ben. Butler heard of Grant's complicity with Senter and Walker and Dent and Hamilton, to get up a "Grant-party" at the South, he wrote here that the General was ambitious of another term—and should be watched! When (very recently) it turned out that the President threw away this chance at the command of such a pigmy as Boutwell, and threw up his military cap for Stokes and Alcorn and Wells and Davis, Butler, shrewdly enough, wrote emphatically that he was a "d——d fool, and needed no watching any longer." Grant has irretrievably split his party at the South, and although he is now under the leading strings of Chandler, of Norfolk, who wants to come to the Senate from Virginia, and will doubtless illegally turn out of the Legislature of that State the very men he did more than any one else to elect, still the real mischief is irretrievable." The whole South is gone!

Another anecdote of General Butler: At the time of the famous "Yerger compromise," the "General" was in town—(I mean in this city. Addressing a fellow-Radical, he said: "I don't blame Grant for this; he doesn't see his agreement substantially surrenders the question of jurisdiction, and places the Supreme Court beyond Congressional legislation. He has agreed to suspend judgment until the Court DECIDES! Cases will arise of which he knows nothing of the hearing. In surrendering what he has (so far as he can do so), he has disrupted the Republican party. I don't blame him for this, however, (as I have said); he knows no more of law or statesmanship than Boutwell himself. But he should have known better than to have appointed a ninnyhammer to the Attorney-Generalship—one of the most important posts in the American or any other Government."

Bearing in mind these observations, the following purport of what Butler said after the news had reached him that General Grant had ordered the Marshal of New York to resist with military force, the sacred writ of habeas corpus, will be better understood: "I have given his Excellency credit for all the negative virtues, and have excused his action in his brief career as best I could; but in this matter, sir, I can find but one excuse, sir—he must have been half-seas over, sir! There were so many ways to avoid this direct issue besides making the Government the insurrectionary party! Pierrepont will fix it. He is a lawyer. The man can be strung up without putting the country by the ears! Let them employ Bingham!"

The President has a rough road before him, and very few friends since he has turned off the Dents, (if he really has split from them). These gentlemen are honest men. Making enquiry, I find the stock was originally from Maryland, but branching from thence, they now may be found in great numbers in almost every State in or out of the Union. Beyond all this, I hear they are gentlemen indeed, and not by courtesy, a proof of which may be found in the fact that they, to a man, denounce the rotten Radical party.—Cor. Baltimore Gazette.

A HORRIBLE RUMOR.—We heard it stated yesterday, by a policeman, that a most horrible and brutal affair occurred near station No. 10, on the Central Railroad, on Friday last. He stated that the police of this city were endeavoring to capture one or two negroes, who had forcibly carried to the woods, near station 10, two white young ladies, and after gagging and binding them, violated their persons in the most fiendish and horrible manner. One of the negroes is without an arm, which he says he lost when a slave of the father of one of the young ladies, and in this wise: He was endeavoring to make his escape from his master when the latter shot at him and broke his arm, and thus necessitated its amputation. The infernal wretch, to gratify his revenge upon the father of the young woman, and after he had brutally violated her, took out his knife and cut off one of her arms, and gave as his reason for doing so, the facts stated to have occurred when he was a slave.

Our informant stated that one of the negroes had been arrested, and that the other was supposed to be in this city.—Macon Telegraph.

ASSOCIATED PRESS DISPATCHES.

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 19.—The recent interview with Gen. Lee, in relation to the proposed meeting of the Generals of both armies at Gettysburg, next week, for the identification of the battle-field, leads to the belief that Lee will eventually attend; not that he wholly approves of the measures, but he regards the meeting as a foregone conclusion. He thinks his presence due to the men he commanded, as the meeting will become history, and because he desires to avoid the misconstruction which would be placed upon his refusal, by the enemies of reconstruction.

Miss Anthony was finally excluded as a delegate from the Labor Convention. Vote 63 to 28.

Further advices from Cuba, to the 9th, state that in an engagement near Remedios, the Cubans defeated a Spanish force, proceeding to Neuvitas to reinforce Lesca. The force of Jordan, that was attacked near Trinidad, succeeded in defeating the Spanish. One hundred and fifty Spaniards deserted, joined the Cubans, and took part in the fight.

A Cuban convoy was captured near Sagua Le Grande, and a small party near Puerto Principe. The last named, were immediately executed.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., August 19.—Colfax, Senator Stewart and others, appealed to Boutwell, to allow drafts on the Sub-Treasury at New York, so as to relieve the money stringency that at present exists here. The appeal, as yet, is unanswered.

It has transpired, that Boutwell permitted a firm here to draw funds from the San-Francisco sub-treasury, thus taking advantage of the public necessity. Boutwell's action is denounced by the press, and creates indignation throughout the entire community.

Four ships cleared yesterday, for Liverpool, with 132,000 sacks of wheat.

NEWSPAPER DEBAUCHERY.—Notwithstanding all that has been said and written about the appointment, we believe Foster Blodgett will make a good Treasurer.—[Atlanta Intelligencer, August 5.

Some months ago a young man, who was raised in affluence, educated at our State University, bred a gentleman, maritally connected with one of the best families of the State; who served honorably through the war for Southern independence, and lost his fortune by the results of that war, under the pressure of financial embarrassment and domestic trouble; yielded to temptation, and lost reputation and personal liberty in an unsuccessful effort to relieve his distress by gambling and speculating on means not his own. The Atlanta Intelligencer blazoned the theft, and invoked the merciless prosecution of the unfortunate victim.

That young man was ground down by poverty, and his object was to remove the pressure. The Intelligencer, to extricate itself from the same dilema, and actuated by the same motives, belies it record, prostitutes its calling, and debases its profession in a deliberate suggestio falsi; and basely attempting to white-wash a perjurer and thief by its endorsement.

The one sought to get money by indulging a pasion for gaming; the other by truckling to power for patronage, and paltering for pelf. If there be a difference in the degree of criminality between the two, it is in favor of the former, for he only brought ruin upon himself and family, but the latter seek to deceive the whole people and lull them into somnolence while he shares their honest gains in common with the public pluderers.—Albany News.

THE MALAGA RAISIN CROP.—The crop of Malaga raisins last year was the greatest ever realized, amounting in the aggregate to 1,950,000 boxes. The yield the present season did not promise so well at last accounts, and it was thought that it would be one-third less than that of 1868. All the old crop had been shipped from Spain except about twenty thousand boxes, which would soon find a market. This fine fruit is shipped to all parts of the world, and generally obtains a ready market wherever introduced.

☞ Twenty clergymen of Philadelphia have just signed an agreement not to officiate at funerals on Sunday, unless upon a physician's certificate that burial on that day is unavoidable. This is a "strike" plainly enough, and what is more, it is a strike for the enforcement of the principle of the eight hour law.

☞ The Prussian Government is the only European power which owns a house in Washington for the permanent use of its legation. It is believed that this example will be speedily followed by the Russian and English Governments, and that stately palaces will be built by them in the American capital, similar to those they own in European capitals, for the accommodation of their legations.

☞ A physician walking out with a friend of his, said to him, "Let us avoid that pretty little woman you see there on the left. She knows me, and casts on me looks of indignation. I attended her husband." "Ah! I see; you had the misfortune to dispatch him." "On the contrary," replied the doctor, "I saved him."

☞ A steam shovel, capable of doing the work of one hundred men, is announced as at work on the railroads in Illinois. It don't get drunk on Saturday night.

☞ A Boston man has been to heaven in a dream, and has "seen Unitarians there, inhabiting the frigid zone, drawn in chariots of ice, by horses without tails." We can go all that but the stump-tailed horses.

☞ Efforts will be made in Ohio this year, to raise a fund to build a monument to President William Henry Harrison over the remains at North Bend.

☞ Good Templars are holding a convention at Cincinnati. No common ones, they are all rank—Supreme Council.

☞ Ten ships are on their way from Europe, with iron for the railroad between Mobile and New Orleans.

The Test Oath.

The last news is that General Canby is not to exact the test oath from the members of the Virginia Legislature.

Some time back we gave the order of General Grant to General Buchanan, about the oath for the Louisiana Legislature, in 1868.

We now reproduce an extract from General Grant's instructions to General Meade, commanding in Georgia, written April 28, 1868. It would be a shameful tergiversation if he should go back on this plain dictum:

> I have carefully read your letter of the 16th of April and its inclosures. I see nothing in them to change my opinion, as expressed to you in my dispatch of March 2, 1868. The officers elected under the new constitution of Georgig are not officers of the provisional government referred to in the reconstruction acts; nor are they officers elected under any so-called State authority, and are not, therefore, required to take the oath prescribed in section 9, act of July 19, 1867. The eligibility to hold office must be determined by the new constitution, and the amendment to the constitution of the United States, designated as article 14.

Gov. Palmer's Speech.

Governor Palmer, of Illinois, made a speech at the Republican Convention, in Springfield. Among other refreshing things he said:

> There is no doubt but the Republican party, to-day, possesses in the highest possible degree the confidence of the American people. Every intelligent Democrat knows, and candid Democrats admit, that no party in this, or any other free country, has earned such claims to the public confidence for accomplishing such noble things for mankind as has the Republican party.

Yes, it has overthrown civil law; hung Mrs. Surratt for what she didn't do; fought to preserve the Union, and then broke it afterwards; increased the public debt in peace; disgruntled the national navy; reduced the national export; put military above civil law, and—but we have'nt space to tell all of its noble things.

Further on, Gov. Palmer thunders, that:

> In States that have always been under the government and control of the Democracy, the most shocking abuse is found to exist.

Radicalism has corrected the abuses with Ashleys, and Turners, and Sickleses for officers, with military inquisitions and "sweat-boxes" for judicial tribunals and with a revenue management that swamps half the receipts of the Government.

The Governor urges the party to further noble deeds:

> You have already secured the strongest claims upon the confidence of the people, by saving the Republic from organized secessionists and traitors; now you have got the task of saving it from organized plunderers, who have heretofore lived upon the public treasury.

Who have been the organized plunderers for the last eight years? The Democrats have certainly had no chance to plunder, during that time.

But the crowning political caper of this Radical politician, is the cool way in which he tries to flounder over into good Democratic State Rights doctrine. Listen to him:

> Perhaps I may just as well say here that one of the great crimes of the Democracy—that crime for which, next to secession itself, they are to be most distinctly arraigned, is the fact that in perverting the old doctrine of State rights, which is but the doctrine of State duties, into the purpose of secession and disruption, they have actually degraded the States until the people now regard with distrust every allusion from every quarter to duties that pertain to the States themselves.
>
> But the Democracy, in engrafting the heresy of secession upon the old doctrine entertained by such as John Marshal and Thomas Jefferson, the doctrine of the right of States to control their own internal affairs, have rendered State rights odious, and have really robbed the States of all power and of all respectability. It is one of the functions of the Republican party to restore those different systems to harmonious action, and acting through the State government, secure the rights of the people that have been entrusted to the keeping of the State, and to see that from the highest to the lowest of the men entrusted with the administration of the State government, there shall be the most rigid responsibility.

This is too funny for comment. "States rights" sounds handsome from Radical lips. The impudence of Radicalism is sublime. The Republican party, with its reckless centralization, charging the Democracy with robbing the States of all power and respectability, is about as comical a phase of politics as could well be imagined. It shows, however, the superlative effrontery of the ruling regime.

We have not space to quote more of Gov. Palmer's remarkable audacities. We can only give one more extract:

> One danger that lies now at the very foundation of our free system, is the failure of the people to hold the men that administer their government to their just responsibility. You elect your party friends to office; you detect them as being false to you, and you forgive them because they belong to your party.

As the Democrats have not been in office for two Presidential terms, the practice above alluded to as the danger lying at the very foundation of our free system, has been a Radical one during this time. We urge its correction.

☞ Olive Logan tells of a terrible child at Long Branch:

"When the dessert comes he has cast aside the bill of fare, having eaten it all the way down; and here it is that his appetite shows itself most wonderful. He has a large slice of two or three kinds of pie, some pudding, some blanc mange, two dishes of ice cream, a plate of cakes, and nuts and raisins. Ye Gods? He munches and munches—like the sailor's wife in "Macbeth," who had chestnuts in her lap. When he can positively eat no more, he rises. Heavens! how many pounds has he gained since dinner? 'More nuts!' he gasps out, with eyes starting from their sockets. Mamma pats him on the head, smiles at the assembled diners, who despise him for a little beast, as who should say, 'Isn't he a darling?' and leads him triumphantly out."

THE ECLIPSE.

Account of the Excursion from the State University, Under Professor Brown, by the Valedictorian, W. R. Hammond.

ATHENS, GA., August 14, 1869.

Mr. Editor: A party of six, consisting of two of our Professors, and four of the graduating class, was sent from the University of Georgia, for the purpose of making observations on the solar eclipse, which occurred on the seventh of this month. It was an event of considerable interest to the people in general, as being a natural curiosity which is very seldom exhibited, and to the scientific world in particular, as a means of affording them an opportunity for observations which could not be taken under any other circumstances. It is to give an account of this eclipse, as it appeared at Bristol, Tennessee, that I now write.

The situation, chosen by our party, was on the boundary line between Virginia and Tennessee, and within less than three hundred miles of the central line of the eclipse. We arrived at Bristol, without accident, Friday evening at 6 o'clock, and very soon became acquainted with the various parties which had assembled there for the same purpose as ourselves. The one under command of Gen. Cutts, of the United States Coast Survey, had been there about two weeks, and had made such preparations as enabled them to observe with the extreme of accuracy. They had constructed a temporary observatory, with transit instrument and clock, and it was a source of great interest to notice with what accuracy they measured the time of a star's transit across the meridian, even down to the tenth of a second. But, such things as this are of more interest to a spectator than to a reader, and I, therefore, simply say, further on this subject, that they very kindly furnished us with the data which they had obtained from observation and computation, such as the mean time and latitude of Bristol, the calculated times of the various phases of the eclipse, etc., which we were prevented from obtaining, for ourselves, by the short interval of time which elapsed between our arrival and the beginning of the eclipse.

And while on the subject of thanks, it becomes me to acknowledge our indebtedness to Governor Bullock for the interest which he manifested in securing our party free passage over the railroads from Atlanta to Bristol.

But to return to the subject in hand. Saturday morning came, and with it came the prospect of a cloudy day. The sun was visible only at occasional intervals during the whole forenoon, which circumstance interfered considerably with Prof. Charbonnier's altitude measurements with the sextant. Nothing daunted by the clouds, however, we selected our position on the summit of a bare hill, which commanded a fine view of the whole heavens, clear down to the horizon. We mounted our telescope, which, by the way, was the finest instrument in the place, being six feet focal length, and having an aperture of 4½ inches, and prepared to observe. We had fully done our part of the preparatory work by noon, even down to stretching a rope around our instruments, to keep curious inquirers at such a distance as should be not only respectful to our party, but also necessary to the success of our observations.

All that we now asked was for the clouds to disperse and give us a fair showing. This they soon did, to our great satisfaction, and before the afternoon had fairly begun the sun was shining out with intense splendor, only occasionally interfered with by a stray cloud.

Prof. Broun availed himself of the time which elapsed before the eclipse to map down the spots on the sun's disc, and Prof. Charbonnier also had ample opportunity to redeem his futile attempts of the morning with the sextant. The rest of us busied ourselves variously, in assisting the professors, keeping the little folks out of our ring, studying a map of the heavens, etc., until about half an hour before the time predicted for the eclipse to begin, when we were assigned to our several posts, with paper, pencil and watches. Messrs. Bean and White were placed in front, to take notes on everything which could possibly come under their observation in connection with the eclipse, such as the appearance of the landscape, the effect on animals, etc., while Mr. Van Epps and I were retained in the rear to count time. Mr. Van Epps, for Prof. Charbonnier, who was observing with his theodolite, and myself for Prof. Broun, with his telescope.

At 39 minutes past four, the last cloud passed before the sun, and then the whole western hemisphere cleared away beautifully, with the exception of a large cloud toward the north, which threatened some, but did not interfere in the slightest. The first contact was calculated by Gen. Cutts' party to take place at 4 o'clock, 43 m. and 36 sec., P. M. A few minutes before this time, every man in our party became intensely silent. The crowd outside of our ropes caught the contagion and kept perfectly quiet, each one with his smoked glass before his eye, doubtless thinking that something terrible was going to happen. Our two Professors were looking intently at the sun, through their respective telescopes, while Mr. Van Epps and I were as intently looking at our watches and counting the seconds. The silence was soon broken by the word "Time" being pronounced simultaneously by our two observers. We immediately recorded it—4 o'clock, 42 m. and 45 sec., and on comparing it with the computed data furnished us, found a discrepancy of 9 seconds, as you perceive. This was doubtless owing to the error of our watches, which were set with the chronometer at the observatory several hours previous. However, it was near enough to convince us that the eclipse was no humbug, and Prof. Broun gave expression to his satisfaction by saying that it came to time beautifully.

We now had time to draw a long breath, seat ourselves back comfortably in our chairs, and take a leisurely view of the sun as its bright disc was gradually clipped away by the dark object passing directly across it. We could now look around a little and observe things in general, before the next great event of the day came off, viz: the total obscuration.

The main feature which now interested us was the roughened edge of the moon which appeared distinctly serrated through our larger telescope, while projected on the sun's disc. These mountains and valleys are never visible except when the moon stands out on this bright back ground.

At twenty-two minutes past five, the wind which had been blowing briskly from the north, lulled to a gentle breeze, and the general quiet of all nature, combined with the hazy uncertainty of the light which seemed to be struggling through the atmosphere, produced that peculiar appearance in nature which precedes a violent storm, and was well calculated to impress us with a sense of the sublime, which became more and more intense, as the dark shadow approached. The rapidity of the moon's motion, seemed to increase as the bright crescent of the sun thinned away into a narrow line of light. All were silent again, but this time the stillness seemed to result from a feeling caused by the commingled impression of the awful and the infinite, which appeared to take possession of every body's mind, even down to the smallest in the company of spectators. There they saw the king of day actually being blotted out from the heavens! And what wonder, then, that they should be silent! The most intense excitement was shown in every look, and as the dark shadow swept over us with a velocity unequelled by the flight of a cannon ball, and in a single instant of time, enveloped us in the darkness of twilight, a suppressed "Oh!" burst from the lips of all present, showing the existence of that feeling which is too intense for violent expression. At the given signal, I recorded the time, and then looked up. Such a display of Heaven's grand fire-works as met my eye, is seldom exhibited to man. The sun was gone, but there, suspended in mid-heaven, was a black ball, and around it a coronal of glory, which only rendered its blackness more intense, and itself gathered new lustre from the contract! It was indeed a grand spectacle, and can be appreciated only by those who witnessed it. The planets Mercury and Venus were distinctly visible, and the star Arcturus, blazed high in the Heavens. A beautiful orange-colored light played around the horizon a little to the north, and also to the south of the sun. The sky exhibited a dead, colorless aspect, and all the objects around us wore an unearthly hue which is never exhibited except during a total eclipse of the sun.

But, grand as the sensuous impression was, when the mind takes advantage of such an occasion as this, to consider the stupendous magnitude of the objects witnessed, the distance of one of which is measured by thousands, and the other by millions of miles, the impression is still grander, and we become instinctively more reverential, and passing on to the great cause, bow in humble adoration before the might of the infinite Creator and Controller of this magnificent work! Such thoughts are not inconsonant with the state of mind produced by such a phenomenon, and as we gazed upward, we could not but wish that another Joshua would appear, and bid the sun and moon stand still till all could see.

But nature is always active, and the brief 2 minutes and 33 seconds sped by with unprecedented rapidity, and soon the string of bright points, called "Bailey's Beads," appeared on the lower limb of the moon, telling us that the scene was almost ended. Then a bright spot appeared, doubtless caused by the sunlight shining through a deep valley, and in an instant more, the crescent of the sun was seen. The reappearance was not gradual, but the light suddenly burst out from its dark hiding-place, with a magnificent blaze, scarcely surpassed in its rapidity and intensity by the lightning's flash.

And, so the scene ended. The sun gradually regained his wonted splendor. The excitement subsided, and the groups of people dispersed and went homeward. Such a spectacle is rarely witnessed more than once in a lifetime, and no description can do it justice. To be appreciated, it must be seen.

W. R. HAMMOND.

The Method and Benefit of Deep Culture.

LETTER FROM MR. GUSTIN.

VINEVILLE, August 4, 1869.

Editors Telegraph: I feel embarrassed by the prominence which has been given my cotton patch, in the Telegraph, as you are aware that I have no taste for a public controversy with those who advocate a different culture. But as you and some of your readers seem anxious to get more information about it, I will try to describe, as briefly as possible, my method of culture on this patch.

I am thoroughly convinced, from experience, that the benefits of deep ploughing in winter and spring are lost, to a great extent, if it is not followed up by deep culture afterward. Because the ground soon becomes hard and compact underneath, if only the surface soil is cultivated in a shallow manner; the disadvantages of which I will speak hereafter.

The cotton patch in question is on a gentle slope of a red hill, and more soil has been washed from it to the lands below than has been washed upon it from those above. It is free from stones and stumps, but was nearly as hard as a brick when it was ploughed for the first time, in the early part of May last.

Before ploughing, I sowed upon it broadcast "Gustin's Superphosphate," at the rate of 500 pounds per acre. With four mules to one of Brinley's largest sized prairie ploughs, it was ploughed 8 inches deep, followed in the same furrow by a subsoil plough, running twelve inches deep. The same quantity of superphosphate was again sown broadcast and harrowed in. The soil was thus pretty thoroughly pulverized and disintegrated to the depth of eighteen or twenty inches, and enriched with superphosphate at the rate of 1,000 pounds per acre.

You will say that that is pretty expensive. But I will venture to say that this land will produce twice as much cotton and as much corn as the best land on a plantation in Floyd county which sold for $100 per acre a few weeks ago.

After harrowing, it was checked off with a small plough, 3x6 feet, in which the seed were planted—a single plant only was left to a hill—and covered with a hoe, which was the only work done with a hoe—as the subsequent culture was done entirely with Mape's Subsoil Lifter and a horse hoe. It has been cultivated four times with the subsoil lifter and twice with the horse hoe.

This subsoil lifter is made with wrought iron—is light, and can easily be drawn by a single mule or horse where the ground has been previously subsoiled. From its peculiar construction it turns no furrow, but works under the ground like a mole, to the depth of about fifteen inches—slightly raising the soil as it moves along. The soil in falling back is pulverized at least a foot on either side of its track.

The horse hoe is an improvement on the cultivator, and effectually destroys all weeds, and thoroughly pulverizes the surface soil.

At the first working of the cotton the subsoil lifter was run four times between the rows the wide way—three times the second—twice the third time—and once at the last working, running as closely as possible to the plants every time.

There is no danger of destroying or injuring the roots by this method of culture, if the plough is not run so near that the swingle-tree breaks the branches—on the contrary, it is the very best preparation for the rapid multiplication and extension of the small fibrous roots which are the feeders of the plants.

This deep culture must be kept up from the beginning. If the roots are prevented from growing downwards by the hardness and poverty of the soil below, and are forced to extend themselves only near the surface, deep ploughing, under such circumstances, would undoubtedly mutilate these roots to the injury of the plant, and cause it to shed its fruit.

This cotton is now about five and a half feet high, and where the stand is perfect, the branches meet in ever direction, and are so heavily laden with fruit that some branches are splitting off with the weight.

It was planted on the 9th of May, and has grown rapidly from the start. It was not injured in the least by the drought, and at that time not a single fallen boll, square or form could be found. Since the rains I have noticed a few fallen squares. Plants growing on a soil cultivated so deeply can hardly be injured by drought, and are benefitted in various other ways.

It must be remembered that the atmosphere is the great store-house from which plants derive at least nine-tenths of the substance of which they are composed. Ammonia is constantly escaping into the atmosphere from decaying animal and vegetable matter. Carbonic acid gas and water are largely diffused in the atmosphere, and the hotter the weather, the more water is held in suspension. We all know how large a portion of a tree is charcoal or carbon, and that when it is burnt and combines with the oxygen of the atmosphere and becomes carbonic acid gas—and invisible gas escaping into the atmosphere—how little is left behind as a residuum. That little is the product of the soil. What has disappeared is substance, derived from the atmosphere.

Now, if the soil be deeply pulverized, so as to allow a free circulation of the atmosphere through it, the watery vapor is condensed by coming into contact with the cool substratum of the earth, on the same principle that the atmosphere condenses upon the sides of a pitcher filled with cold water, upon a warm, mid-summer day—thus supplying the roots with moisture, holding in solution those fertilizing gases which the atmosphere contains, so necessary to the growth and development of the plant, and in this condition so readily to be taken up by its roots and fibres.

Besides all this, these atmospheric gases and water make soluble, and a food for the plant other substances in the earth, which without them, would remain insoluble, inert and useless.

A deeply pulverized soil has still another advantage in dry weather. It draws up the moisture from below, upon the principle of capillary attraction, which may be illustrated by holding a lump of loaf sugar part way immersed in your cup of coffee. The sugar will immediately draw up sufficient of the liquid to become saturated with the moisture.

All these advantages are greatly diminished or entirely lost in a hard, compact soil. When the rains fall—impregnated with these fertilizing gases—if the soil be deeply mellowed and porous, they are absorbed at once and penetrate to the roots of the plants with their rich burden of life and health. But if only the surface is mellow, and the ground be sloping or hilly, most of the rain runs off, carrying with it much of the surface mould into the streams below. On the other hand, should the ground be level, it lies upon the surface till evaporated by the sun, and the enriching gases escape again into the atmosphere, which should be appropriated by the crop.

Water which lies upon the surface till evaporated by the sun, makes the ground cold. It takes the heat from it to convert the water into vapor, upon the same principle that a room or sidewalk is cooled by sprinkling with water on a sunny day. Finally, if the water remains upon the surface long enough to become stagnant, it becomes so poisonous to the plants that they turn yellow and sickly.

It would be easy, Messrs. Editors, to prolong these remarks indefinitely, but I have no time. I hold you responsible altogether for this apparent obtrusion of my views. I have no desire to championize them, or to combat conflicting opinions—but, having appealed to me for an explanation of some little singularity in the mode of cultivating the cotton patch in question, I have written this solely in deference to the request of your readers and yourselves. Yours, truly,

S. I. G.

An Iowa Farmer Fleeced by "The Chicago Beauty."

Mr. Smith was going to Chicago on business. So Smith started, after exchanging many words of affection, sympathy and good advice with his family, leaving them in tears and sadness. On the train for Chicago, Smith—fortunately, as he supposed, unfortunately as the sequel proved—shared his seat with an elegantly dressed and rather handsome woman, who was also going to the great and wicked "Garden City." An acquaintanceship soon sprang up between the two, and ere long it ripened into intimacy and what the too confiding and enthusiastic Smith supposed to be mutual love.

Before reaching Chicago, Smith's thoughts and affection for his distant family became swallowed up by dreams of the bliss in store for him through the companionship of his new friend and sweetheart, and the two had planned to elope together. They would go "anywhere, out of the reach of"—the Smith family in Iowa.

On arriving at Chicago, the loving couple proceeded to the Metropolitan Hotel, and were registered as husband and wife. Ere long the tender "wife" informed the confiding and Smithly "husband" that she desired to do some shopping in the city before proceeding further on their journey of love, and that a few greenbacks were necessary. Of course this hint was sufficient, and Jones unhesitatingly gave her his purse, containing $1,500, telling her to use what money she needed, and then return the purse to him. She smilingly departed, promising to return in about one hour.

Neither the woman nor the purse ever returned to the confiding Smith. He finally confessed the whole matter to the proprietor of the hotel, and discovered that his bewitching companion was one of the most notorious courtezans of Chicago, and he was a duped, deceived, wronged and robbed individual.—Dubuque Times.

HORRIBLE DEATH.—Last week, Mr. S. W. McClelland left his home in Carthage to visit a neighboring town. He rode along for two or three miles very comfortably. On the road he overtook a Miss Blivins, to whom he was engaged to be married. She was also mounted and gaily dressed, and had a scarlet ribbon for a sash. The horse of Mr. McClelland seemed to become frightened at the sight of the dazzling colors, and became restive. The rider, however, managed him pretty well, and continued to jog on by the side of Miss Blivins, until that thoughtless young lady gave him a slight tip of her whip, when he started off like a streak. She spurred up her little mare after the enraged horse, but was speedily left behind. The horse rushed madly on, and in crossing a broken part of the road, two miles from Lebanon, in Wilson county, he threw his rider violently to the ground. The rider's foot caught in the stirrup and he was dragged along the rough road at the rate of twelve miles an hour, at the heels of an infuriated horse. His bones were nearly all broken, and he was gashed and mangled up in a most frightful manner. The horse did not stop until he ran into the square at Lebanon, when he fell down exhausted, and died in a few minutes. The mangled remains of the rider were gathered up, put in a box and sent back to his friends.—Nashville Press and Times.

IS IT SO?—Some of our exchanges say old party issues have played out—are of the dead past, and we must look alone to the future.

The Democrats opposed the National Banking system. They do now.

The Democrats opposed protective tariffs. They do now. The Democrats opposed internal improvements by the general government. They do now.

The Democrats believed in the doctrine laid down by the Kentucky resolutions. They do now.

And if there is one of the old principles held by that party that they do not now hold too, we have been unable to see it. We may not see things as they should be seen in these days of lightning speed, nor do we desire to see them in that way. We prefer the old land-marks, and the Government administered in good faith and upon a solid basis.—Rome Commercial.

☞ A youngster, who had been detected by his father in the act of stealing some fruit stored for winter consumption, was angrily bidden to "go into the next room and prepare himself for a severe flogging." Having finished the work which he had in hand, the inexorable parent armed himself with a stout horsewhip, and went in quest of the culprit, whom he found ornamented with a hump at which Quasimodo himself would have shuddered. "What on airth have you got on your back?" asked the wondering sire. "A leather apron," replied John, "three times double. You told me to prepare myself for a severe flogging, and I guess I've done the best I could!"

☞ Mrs. Kate Baxter, a daughter of Commodore Vanderbilt, became a heroine at Rye Beach a day or two ago. She was riding in a Victoria carriage, accompanied by her child and Mrs. Pirsson and child, when the horse affrighted, ran away. With coolness and generosity she determined first to save the child of her friend. So seizing it, she awaited a favorable opportunity and threw it out on the grass, where it fell in perfect safety. She then pressed her own child to her bosom and leaped from the carriage, escaping with a few slight bruises. Mrs. Pirsson suffered a few insignificant injuries about the head. The carriage was dashed against a stone wall.

☞ A mounted officer was riding by a field in which there were some apple-trees laden with early fruit, and some straggling persimmon-trees covered with green persimmons. He saw some soldiers attempting to hide, and at once suspected that they were robbing the orchard. So he halted, and the following colloquy took place: "Halloo, what are you doing there?" said the officer. "We come to get some 'simmons." "Apples, I suspect. Why, the persimmons are green enough to pucker up your mouths." "That's jist what we want with 'em. We want to make our mouths little to suit the size of our rations!"

☞ It is gratifying to hear that the administration has determined to use all available means for the enforcement of the laws in Georgia. The most rigorous measures ought to be pursued in that turbulent and disloyal State for the protection of life and property, and the collection of the revenues.—Alabama State Journal.

A delicious morceau. The State Journal ought to rigorously mind its own business.

IT IS seldom that we use the columns of this paper to "puff" or notice the "thousand and one" articles known as "Patent Medicines." We, however, vary from our rule in the present case, that we may call attention to the article known as "S. T.—1860—X., Plantation Bitters." We desire it understood that we do so without any solicitation or promise of benefit from the proprietor or other interested parties. We simply do it as an act of duty toward those who are laboring under physical disability, weakness, and the various complaints arising from impurities of the blood. Having used the Bitters at the instigation of a friend, (and, we confess, with some misgivings at the outset,) we found them a most valuable medical compound, and to our great satisfaction, accomplished the object for which they were used.

Notice—Fulton Superior Court—W. R. Venable.

Fulton Superior Court.—A special term of Fulton Superior Court will be held on the 3d Monday in September, for the trial of criminals.

Rain.—Atlanta was visited by a copious shower of refreshing rain yesterday evening. The sun shone out brilliantly during the performance, smiling approval on the scene.

More Excursionists.—Five car loads of excursionists, from Taliaferro and Green counties, came up the Georgia Railroad yesterday morning, and stopped at Stone Mountain.

The Empire Mills.—The Empire Mills, near Allatoona, will be completed in a few days. Before the war, the Empire Mills brand of flour, was considered the best in market.

New Depot.—A new depot is being built at Allatoona, on the Western and Atlantic Railroad, and will be ready for use in a few days.

Change of Schedule.—After Sunday next, we learn that through freights on the Georgia Railroad, will leave at 8 o'clock, instead of 9, P. M., as heretofore.

Rev. Hiram Bokum.—[illegible] that Rev. Hiram Bokum, of Chatta[illegible] has resigned the office of Comm[illegible] igration, and designs locating in Atlanta. [illegible] Bokum is a minister of the Lutheran [illegible] is stopping at the Ficken House.

Paid up Promptly.—[illegible] Morris, the energetic Secretary of the Southern Life Insurance Company, forwarded $9,700 to Southwestern Georgia, amount due on policy of a Mr. Ward. The policy was not due, but he forwarded it so as to anticipate the date.

Fine Fat Beef.—James Terhune will receive to-day, another consignment of fat Tennessee beeves and sheep. We saw yesterday, a weighty bullock, of 1,700 pounds gross weight, that he designs slaughtering this evening, and putting on the market to-morrow evening.

Personal.—Rev. W. T. Brantley, D. D., has gone off [illegible] a trip to recuperate his health, and will [illegible] some six weeks. He will visit the Virgi[illegible] springs, Philadelphia, and New York, before he returns.

Robbery by a Female.—A gentleman was robbed of a gold watch and chain, valued at $150, and $95 in currency, by a female. He reported the fact to Capt. G. Whit Anderson and Lieut. E. C. Murphy, of the police, who succeeded in recovering the watch and money.

Filial Treachery.—A negro man came to Lieut. Murphy yesterday, and informed him that he had been robbed by some one of about $200 in money. Lieut. Murphy, Capt. Anderson, and policemen Johnson and Hinton got on the trail of the robber so closely, that he brought the money back. The robber proved to be the negro man's own son.

A Cleptomaniac.—We learn that quite a number of books have been missed from the State Library. Search was made for them, and they were found on the shelves of unsuspecting legal gentlemen, who had purchased them from a person whom we will not name. The books were abstracted from the library, and after erasure of labels, offered for sale. The man is a confirmed cleptomaniac.

Breveted for Faithful Service.—John M. Born, for ten years past connected with the Southern Express Company, has resigned his position as Route Agent between Atlanta and Opelika, Ala. William H. Clayton, son of our esteemed fellow citizen W. W. Clayton, and Messenger on the same route, has been appointed as Mr. Born's successor, with headquarters in Atlanta. James B. Shaw takes Mr. Clayton's place as Messenger.

A Confidence Game.—A white man, named Garvey, and a colored man, named George Valentine, played a confidence game, a few days since, on two Brazilian women, living in this city. Learning that the women had bargained for a lot, these nice young men beguiled them to entrust them with $200 to make the payment for it. As soon as they obtained the money, they left for Macon. One of the party returned to East Point, where he was gobbled up by Lieut. Murphy, who recovered $83. Policemen Queen and Carson captured the other party who is now under arrest.

Habeas Corpus.—A Habeas Corpus case was argued at chambers yesterday, before John D. Pope. Mitchell Walker, a person of color, it appears, before and during the war, lived with one Adelade Walker, whom he claimed as his wife, and by whom he had three children. After freedom, however, he saw another woman who charmed him more, and forsaking Adelade, he clove to his new love like a sick kitten to a hot brick. Mitchell has long been anxious to have the children live with him, and they would not. Hence he applied for the great writ to have the law interpose in his behalf. T. W. J. Hill appeared for the petitioner, and G. S. Thomas for the respondent. After investigation and argument had, Judge Pope decided that the children should remain in the custody of their mother

Communicated.]

The Annual State Fair of 1870—The New Atlanta Fair Ground—Why Are We not Up and Doing.—Mr. Editor: The city authorities purchased fifty acres of land some time ago for a new Fair Ground, since which we have heard nothing of it.

Now, that fifty acres of land though beautifully located and susceptible of a high state of ornamentation, is now as uncomely a spot as one could find in a day's ride; and I wonder that steps are not being taken to place the theatre of our future fair exhibitions in proper condition. It can not be done in one year, nor in two—nor five; and so it becomes our city officials to commence the good work at once, if the fair of 1870 is to be made something worthy of Atlanta's enterprise.

There are two beautiful streams meandering through the new Fair Ground; and there is also a spring or two; besides, a vigorous growth of small trees. The whole needs to be enclosed by a substantial fence, the posts of granite. This done, trim up the young growth, and clear away such as are not wanted. Then plow over the entire premises, and sow down in clover and blue grass in the coming autumn. The springs, too, should be looked after, for they will be invaluable in the time of the fair.

All this wants to be done at the earliest practicable moment, for, large as may seem the work, I have mapped out in a few lines, it comprises but the initiatory step. Our Fair Ground must be more attractive, and we must fix it up with a view to its becoming that which Atlanta has not now—a park—a public drive—a place of resort from the dust and confusion of our crowded thoroughfares. We want some place to show off our fancy stock in, and to take our wives and sweethearts to. There must be a splendid drive in that new Fair Ground, as well as all sorts of walks and shaded nooks. Shrubbery must not be forgotten, while the streams will afford an artificial pond or two. All these things we can have in the new Fair Ground, and the cost need not be great either. Time and a little labor can bring them about. Put the place in charge of some man of taste, and it will "bloom like the rose" in a few years. Of all people in the world, the denizens of this same Atlanta have need of some breathing spot—some place to delight the eye. They have none such. Let us "cultivate the beautiful, for the useful will cultivate itself."

Give us a vigorous editorial on this subject, Mr. Editor. Stir up our people with a long pole, and dig our city officials under the fifth rib, every now and then.

JOHN SMITH.

Mothers be Advised.—Always keep a bottle of DR. TUTT'S CELEBRATED EXPECTORANT in the house. It is a certain and pleasant cure for Croup, Coughs, Colds, etc. It is agreeable to the taste, and children take it readily. Go to your druggist and get it at once, it may save the life of your little one.

CERTIFICATES.

I have been afflicted with Granular Conjunctivitis three years. For the last twelve months I have been almost blind. I had to give up the management of all my business in consequence of this affliction. I have been under the treatment of Dr. Hooten three weeks. In about four days I could see to make my way without inconvenience. I think I can now see as well as I ever could. The disease appears to be removed, and I fully believe that my eyes will be as good as they ever were. In the short time that I have been under Dr. Hooten, I have seen persons who came to him blind, who are now entirely restored to sight. He has a large number of patients, and so far as my knowledge extends, they are, almost without exception, improving well. B. F. COWART.

Macon, Ga., August 13, 1869.

For five years I have suffered greatly from Granular Conjunctivitis. For two years I have been unable to give personal attention to my affairs. During the five years of my affliction I tried many eminent physicians, in vain. The result was—blindness. In this distressing condition, I placed myself under the treatment of Dr. Hooten, three weeks ago. In one week I could see to make my way alone, over the city. In two weeks, I wrote a long letter home to my family, with my own hand. To-day, the end of three weeks, I have indulged in reading fine print. I have every reason to believe that I shall soon be restored. I have conversed with many persons whom Dr. Hooten has entirely cured, and I feel safe in advising all who are afflicted with diseased eyes, to make no delay in giving him a trial. Let every friend of suffering humanity take every opportunity of placing this certificate in the hands of the afflicted.

The boarding department of Dr. Hooten's Infirmary is presided over by Mrs. M. A. Watts, assisted by two amiable, accomplished daughters. Mrs. W. has performed this kind office for a number of years. Nothing too good can be said of this estimable Christian lady and daughters. In all respects, they are eminently qualified for the responsible positions which they occupy. The tables are loaded with sumptuous fare. The rooms are all well kept, and the beds nice and comfortable. Free diet and free exercise are enjoyed by all, and life here partakes of the comforts and pleasures of home. This is the universal expression of the boarders.

"Fresh as a Maiden's Blush," is the pure peachy complexion which follows the use of Hagan's Magnolia Balm. It is the True Secret of Beauty. Fashionable Ladies in Society understand this.

The Magnolia Balm changes the rustic Country Girl into a City Belle more rapidly than any other one thing.

Redness, Sunburn, Tan, Freckles, Blotches, and all effects of the Summer Sun, disappear where it is used. And a genial, cultivated, fresh expression is obtained which rivals the Bloom of Youth. Beauty is possible to all who will invest 75 cents at any respectable store, and insist on getting the Magnolia Balm.

BRAN NEW LETTERS!!

FRESH TESTIMONIALS!

DARBY'S PROPHPLACTIC FLUID!

THE ASTONISHING

Family Medicine ! ! !

Saved from Death---Read!

MONTGOMERY, ALA., June 28, 1869.

MESSRS. J. DARBY & CO., 161 William street, New York—Gents: Yours, of the 23d, is before me and has attention. It gives me pleasure to say, that mp belief is, that your "Fluid," under the supervision of a kind Providence, saved the life of my youngest child, some six years ago. The child being wasted to a skeleton, by the effects of teething, and an affection of the bowels therewith. I had never seen any one reduced so low to recover.

"Physic" had been tried in vain, until the Physicians stated it was useless. A friend recommended your "Fluid," or ozone, which he stated was one of the component parts of it. I did so, and the effect was like magic, plainly discernable in one hour, in its good effects, producing quiet and sleep almost at once, where irritation and sleepless restlessness had previously possessed the child to nearly entire exhaustion.

I at first administeredit in a small way, 2 and 3 drops in a spoonful of water, and increased it to 6 and 10 drops. It completely checked the bowels, and had the happiest effect, the child rapidly recovering.

I have tried your "Fluid," on animals, with the same effect; both horses and cows, mingling more or less in water, and letting them drink.

I have no hesitation in saying, I believe it a specific for Chronic Diarrhœa, or any violent affection of the bowels.

I would not be without it in my family, under any consideration.

Yours, truly, WILLIAM FOWLER.

Mr. Fowler is a member of the celebrated Banking House of Fowler & Somerville, Montgomery, Alabama.

AND AGAIN!

Read the following letter from Mr. Frank Saunders, a well-known citizen, and brother-in-law of the beloved Bishop Paine, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South:

189 BROADWAY, NEW YORK, July 29, 1869.

MESSRS. J. DARBY & CO., 161 WILLIAM STREET, NEW YORK—Gents: About the 10th of June last, one of my children was taken with Scarlet Fever, in its most malignant form, and as soon as I could I procured your valuable disinfectant, "Darby's Prophylactic Fluid." Although it was several days after the appearance of the disease before I began using the Fluid, still, by a free use of it, the disease was not only confined to the one case, but the malignity of that case somewhat mitigated.

During the use of the Fluid, as a disinfectant, in my family it was also, tried in a case of headache, and one of toothache, the results in each case being instantaneous relief. It was afterwards tried in a case of Erysipelas, with almost equal success.

It is due to the merits of this compound, also, to state, that the case of Erysipelas in question, being located in the feet, the Fluid, in its application, was brought in frequent contact with a troublesome corn, on one of the feet, to the utter discomfiture of said corn; for, upon subsequent examination, it had disappeared, and though it was sought for diligently, it could not be found.

I hand you this, hoping it may be the means of inducing others of earth's poor sufferers, to test for themselves, as I did, the great merits of this great remedy.

Very respectfully, yours,
FRANK SAUNDERS.

Never was a medicine so universally esteemed and extolled. It never fails. It may be depended on.

L. H. BRADFIELD'S COLUMN.

FEMALE REGULATOR,

Woman's Best Friend

THIS valuable Medicine is prepared for WOMEN exclusively, and to be used by WOMEN only. It is adapted especially to those cases where the WOMB is disordered, and will cure any irregularity in the "menses," except in such cases as require a surgical operation. As these last are very rare, the FEMALE REGULATOR is of almost universal application. In a sudden check of the "monthly courses" from COLD, trouble of mind or like cause, it acts like a charm, by RESTORING THE DISCHARGE IN EVERY INSTANCE, thus relieving the fever, headache, pain in the small of the back and "lower stomach," flushes of heat about the face, chilly sensations, burning of the eyelids and general restlessness. Taken in time, all these symptoms pass away immediately, without injury to the constitution. Frequently, however, the proper remedy is not applied in time, the disease becomes chronic, and the foundation laid for numberless evils to the constitution of the woman. The next "turn" comes around and there is no "show," or perhaps the "whites" will appear. There will be some uneasiness about the womb, but very little or none of the natural fluid escaping. The complexion becomes sallow, bowels, swollen, a sort of greenish caste about the face, constant dull aching pains in the head, weight in the lower stomach and back, with or without whites, palpitations of the heart, pallor, exhaustion, indigestion, weariness, langour, aching across the loins, loss of appetite, pain in left breast, tightness across the chest, cough and giddiness. If still allowed to go on, "green sickness" will be fully developed—the headache becomes severe, with loss of memory, diminishing sensibility, SICK STOMACH, dyspepsia, no relish for food, loss of flesh, increased fluttering of the heart SWELLING OF THE FEET, legs and body and occasional spitting of blood. The slightest effort causes HURRIED BREATHING, almost SUFFOCATION. The skin is flabby and a "doughy feel." This is a sad picture, but it is the condition of thousands of women between the ages of 15 and 45, who are brought to the verge of the grave by ignorance or neglect to take the proper remedy. To all who are afflicted with any of the symptoms above mentioned, in connection with an irregularity of the "monthly sickness," we earnestly say TAKE DR. J. BRADFIELD'S FEMALE REGULATOR. A few ounces taken, you will at once experience its benefits, and with a little patience you will be fully restored to health.

This remedy has been extensively used for upwards of twenty years by many of the most experienced and successful Physicians of Georgia. We repeat, that Dr. J. Bradfield's FEMALE REGULATOR is prepared for WOMEN and to be used by Women only.

A trial is all we ask.

PURIFYING PILLS.

THE excellent Remedies of O. S. Prophitt, M. D., need no recommendation—their well known power in removing the diseases peculiar to our Southern climate having already established for them an unviable reputation in Georgia and the adjoining States. As the majority of persons living in the South are predisposed to disease of the Liver, it is granted by all intelligent physicians that most of the pains and aches of our people are due to organic or functional derangement of that important organ. Prophitt's Liver Medicine and Anti-Bilious Pills strike directly at the root of the evil. They cure the Liver which, in nine cases out of ten, is at the bottom of the Coughs, Dyspepsia, Colic, Sick Headache, Rheumatism, Constipation, Menstrual Obstructions, etc., so common among our people. Earache, Toothache, Acute Rheumatism, Neuralgia and and bodily pains of every kind flee before

SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR OR

Medicine for Dyspepsia, Headache Jaundice, Costiveness, Camp Dysentery, Sick Headache, Chronic Diarrhœa, Affections of the Bladder and Kidneys, Fever, Nervousness, hills, Diseases of the Skin, Impurity of the BloodMelancholy or Depression of Spirits

Most of the ailments here enumerated have their origin in a diseased liver, which is the most prevalent affection in this country, and as in many cases the patient is not within the reach of a physician, it requires that some remedy should be provided that would not in the least impair the constitution, and yet be active and safe. That such is the character of the SIMMONS REGULATOR there can be no doubt, which the testimony of hundreds will establish.

SYMPTOMS OF A DISEASED

LIVER. Pain in the side. Sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder blade is mistaken for rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness, bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternating with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred when few of them existed, yet examination of the body after death has shown the Liver to have been extensively deranged.

It should be used by all persons, old and young, whenever any of the foregoing symptoms appear. It is a purely vegetable compound, is not injurious to the most delicate constitutions, and will keep the liver in healthy action if used properly.

Persons living in unhealthy localities may avoid all bilious attacks by taking a dose occasionally to keep the liver in healthy action.

Regulator For children complaining of colic, headache, or sick stomach a teaspoonful or more will give relief. Children, as well as adults, eat sometimes too much supper, or eat something which does not digest well, producing sour stomach, heart-burn, or restlessness; a good dose will give relief. This applies to persons of all ages.

Many persons, from eating too much, are restless at night, or in day time fidgety, wool-gathering, can't understand what they read, can't keep their thoughts on any one subject so as to reason well, or become fretful. One or two tablespoonful will give relief.

Jaundice.—Take enough Regulator after eating each meal to produce one full action from the bowels every day.

Pregnant ladies will find sure relief from their headache, costiveness, swimming in the head, colic, sour stomach, restlessness, etc., etc.

THE DAILY CONSTITUTION.

ATLANTA, GEORGIA::::AUGUST 19.

City and Suburban Affairs.

Supreme Court.—Morning Session. Thursday, Aug. 19, 1869.—Argument was resumed and concluded by Judge Underwood, in Childers, administrator, vs. West et al. Equity, from Polk.

The only other matter on the docket was a motion on behalf of defendant in error, to dismiss the bill of exceptions of James T. Dever, plaintiff in error, vs. Warren Akin, defendant in error, upon the ground that it could and should have been sent up in time for this term, and was not. L. E. Bleckley, for movant, and Underwood & Rowell, contra.

Upon explanation of the reasons for the delay, the Court heard argument, and refused to dismiss the case. It was then proposed to argue the case now but the Court held that it belonged to the docket of next term.

The Court adjourned.

They will continue their consultations on causes held up, and not finally adjourn till they are decided.

Mysteries Unveiled.

The linen under garments so grateful to the wearer at this season, are expensive when first purchased, but are adopted by many on the score of economy, as they are far more durable than those made of muslin. Among the standard brands Richardson's linen is most in favor at the furnishing houses. It is the best to select soft linen, without dressing. This is ready for the needle, and it is said to be proof against shrinkage, but a careful seamstress will have it rubbed through cold water before cutting into garments that require to be very accurately fitted. The linen usually bought for ladies' chemises and gowns costs from seventy-five cents to one dollar a yard. A heavier article is used for drawers. Four and a half yards is the quantity purchased for a suit of chemise and drawers for a person of medium size. Five yards make a plain sacque gown, and six yards the yoke gown preferred for linen.

Tucks and puffs are the most substantial trimmings. Diagonal and horizontal tucks are worn, but the perpendicular tucks have the preference this season for chemise bands, drawers, gowns, and skirts. Puffs are inserted diagonally and in medallions, a narrow strip of straight muslin being stitched on the outside of the garment, at the edges of the puff, to hide the seams and strengthen them. Coventry ruffling, with selvedge on each side, and the Alexandra frills scalloped and prepared for gathers, are much used on plain underclothing. For better garments, we prefer ruffles hemmed by hand or machine, with rolled ruffles overseamed to the garment. The best material for ruffling is a thick quality of linen cambric, such as is sold for one dollar and a half to two dollars a yard. Fine sheer cambric does not wear well. Nansook and mull ruffles are soon rubbed out in washing, and [illegible] and scarcely repay the trouble of making. Narrow thread edging, a mere scallop, is the prettiest finish for linen ruffles.

Imported chemises of finest linen are made in sacque shape, with sleeves and skirt in one. The pointed bands are two inches wide, and made without opening in front. Stout figures should wear sacque chemises, as they have no superflous fullness. When sleeves are made separately, they have shaped gussets, one seam under the arm sufficing for the sleeve. To dispense with separate corset cover, a deep point like yoke is attached to the front and back of the chemise band, and left separate below to fall over the corsets. The fall should be richly trimmed and made deep enough to reach the waist. A cluster of tucks above the hem is the only trimming admissible upon the skirt. Drawers are buttoned on the sides, and worn narrow and short, reaching just below the knee. They should be trimmed to match the chemise. Corset-covers, or under-bodies, have short darts in front, and are sloped over the hips. The trimming around the neck is two or three inches in depth. The sleeves are a single short puff, or else entirely formed of trimming. Camisoles for morning wear are loose short sacques of Irish linen or of cambric, trimmed with tucks, embroidery and lace. They are worn for neglige costume, and to breakfast at one's own home. Dressing sacques for covering the shoulders while making the toilette are of ecru or unbleached linen with needle-worked scallops of blue or scarlet.—Harper's Bazar.

☞ Consignments and orders solicited.

GORDON CO., GA., June 28th, 1869.

Messrs. ADAIR & BRO., Atlanta, Ga.:

GENTLEMEN—We received yours a few days since, requesting a statement of the merits of the Gullett Gin purchased of you last year. I have to say of this Gin, that it is decidedly the best Gin of which we have any knowledge. The workmanship of the machine is very superior, every part of it being made with great care, and the boxes and shafts being set in a cast iron frame, admitting of no springing or working. It runs with a smoothness and nicety seldom attained in such machines. The improvements of this Gin are: 1st, it takes the dirt and trash out of the cotton. 2d, it, by means of the steel brush wheel, combs out the lint, and renders the fibre much longer than the ordinary gin, or, at least, makes the cotton show a much longer fibre. These two improvements gives cotton ginned on this Gin, we think, fully the advantage of 1¼ cents per pound in value over cotton of the same kind ginned on the ordinary gin; and when the cotton in the seed is very trashy and dirty, or contains a great many hard locks, it may add more to the market value of the lint. We could perceive no difference between the draught of this Gin and the old one we replaced by it, of the same number of saws. The Gullett Gin certainly deserves the attention of planters.

Very respectfully,
J. C. & R. GARLINGTON.

"THE UTLEY COTTON PRESS."

HAY & COTTON PRESS
PATENTED BY
GREY UTLEY.
MAY 1865
HART & MAPOTHER LOUISVILLE KY

A new invention of power whereby all friction is overcome. The simplicity, economy and durability of this Press astonishes all who see it, and the more so, that a power so simple should so long have been unappropriated. The strain is wholly upon two (2) Iron Bars 1¼ inches square, operating on these bars as if two men were pulling at each end in contrary direction, which will sustain a strain of 190,000 pounds each. With this Press two men can do all the packing or pressing of a 500 pound bale inside of eight minutes, and if need be, one man can operate, only requiring more time. This Press will not occupy more space than a Piano, and can be placed under the Gin and receive the Cotton direct from the Gin, thus doing away with Lint Rooms, and can be readily taken down and transported as it is simple and light. We can supply these Presses cheaper than any yet offered. Will send circulars to any desiring, and would advise all wanting Presses to withhold buying until they examine this. We will, at an early day, have one on exhibition in Atlanta, when it can be seen.

R. P. GLENN, Agent,

R. P. GLENN, ESQ.—Dear Sir: I am so much pleased with the style, make and operation of the Utley Cotton Press, that I have concluded to order one of them from you for my plantation on the Mississippi River.

I do this, notwithstanding I have on my place a large and superior 10 inch Iron Screw Press, which cost upwards of $300 before the war. Believing that the saving of time and space, to say nothing of its superior baling qualities, and by reason of its great power, will more than repay its cost over the one now in use. I do not hesitate to recommend this Press to all who may require one.

Very Respectfully,
A. J. HOLMES.
